On a front of 20 miles between Armentieres and Lens, the Germans continue to retire from the salient west of the fortress of Lille. North of St. Quentin the British again are storming the German lines, while in Champagne the French are pressing northward, threatening the German communications.

Evacuation of the Lille salient is the direct result of the allied advances in Flanders and around Cambrai. The Germans already have retired an average of two miles.

Most Serious Cases Being Taken to Temporary Ward in the City Hospital

Barre's grip epidemic, which swept out of bounds earlier in the week, seemed to be more in check to-day, in the opinion of doctors, nurses and members of the special relief committee, all of whom are in close touch with the situation. It is true that there were additional deaths over night and a few new cases, but the increase in the latter is nowhere near as neavy as in the past few days, and it is confidently believed that the scourge is on the wane. Recoveries are beginning to exceed greatly the aggregate number of deaths and new cases, and over and above this encouraging feature, the force of physicians and nurses, volunteer and professional, has been considerably augmented by arrivals from out of town.

Since yesterday's list was compiled, there have been 12 deaths. Most of the victims were desperately ill and were tabulated as early as yesterday morning among those whom pneumonia had placed Mr. Kidd was a granitecutter by trade.
